Card From "The Little Man Behind."

Editor Bourbon News—The managers of the Comet Theatre must be in league with the various milliners of Paris in assisting them to display their latest creations. On Saturday night I attended the Comet in company with my wife and two children, to see what I was told in the afternoon was two of the best pictures ever presented at this cozy little theatre. All that myself and family were enabled to see was a display of ostrich feathers and ribbons which I could have seen on the streets without a cent of expenditure. In justice to the managers of the Comet I will say that they displayed on the screen a sign reading "Ladies, Practice the Golden Rule. Remove Your Hats." It is evident that very few ladies in the large audience knew the golden rule. For their benefit I will repeat it: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." It is a very small amount of trouble for a lady to remove her hat, and if she knew how much it would raise her in the estimation of the person behind her who has paid his admission to see the show and not to look at her hat, I am sure that every lady in the audience would gladly comply with the request of the management. I thank you in advance for the publicity given this.

Bath Growers Late in Stripping.

Bath county farmers have never before been so late in getting their tobacco stripped, according to reports from buyers who have recently visited that section. The growers declare, however, that they are in no hurry, as they are determined not to sell at the price at which E. R. Toewater of the American Tobacco Company, indicated some time ago would be offered for the 1910 crop.

A prominent buyer recently made a trip through one of the best tobacco raising sections of the county, offering, it is said, in some instances, the eight-cent limit for good crops but he could not buy a pound, the farmers all saying they would keep their crops and raise no tobacco next year, unless prices improved materially.

Within Half a Vote of Being President.

The recent death of Mrs. Lena Duke Smith, a Scott county woman, widow of General Green Clay Smith, brings to mind the fact that her husband at one time came within one-half a vote of ultimately being President of the United States. When Lincoln was nominated for his second term the convention thought it would be a good move to nominate a Union man from a border State for second place on the ticket. Rev. Green Clay Smith was voted for and on one ballot the vote was a tie. On the next ballot one of his supporters changed his vote and ultimately Andrew Johnson of Tennessee, was nominated. Lincoln was killed and Johnson became President. This shows how close a man may come to greatness and yet miss it.

Two Insurance Companies Admitted.

State Insurance Commissioner C. W. Bell has admitted two new insurance companies to do business in this state as follows: The Prudential Casualty Company of Indianapolis, with a capital stock of $487,047.25, and the Commercial Life Insurance Company, also of Indianapolis. The Commercial Life is a mutual company with assets amounting to $131,994.76.

Banks Must Protect Surplus.

In the future all banks in Kentucky must comply with the statutes requiring them to create and preserve their surplus as prescribed by law. Secretary of State Bruner Friday announced this ruling, after receiving from Attorney General Breathitt a written opinion upholding him in this ruling. Bruner holds that each bank must comply with the law in setting aside one-tenth of its net earnings to create a surplus equal to one-fifth of its capital stock, before any dividends are declared. He also rules that after the surplus is created by law, the bank must keep the surplus unimpaired before dividends are declared. In other words, if a bank by any kind of loss impairs its surplus, then the surplus equal to one-fifth of the capital stock must be recreated before any dividends are declared, and that the bank will not be permitted, as was the case when the original surplus was created, by putting up one-tenth of its net earnings before declaring dividends. He says this ruling became imperative because a few of the Kentucky banks are using their surplus to pay dividends and replacing the surplus with one-tenth of the net earnings.

Republicans After Plum.

The Third railroad commissioners district of Kentucky is largely Republican, and a number of prominent Republicans are being mentioned for the position as probable candidates. The district is composed of the counties which make up the Tenth Congressional district, the greater number of the counties of the Eleventh, several counties in the Sixth district, Bourbon county in the Seventh, and the counties of the Ninth, with Madison of the Eighth District.

The Republicans of the Ninth district are now claiming that it is their time to have this plum, and are persistently demanding that they be given this nomination for this office, which means election this time. Joseph B. Bennett, the standpat Republican from Greenup, who was retired from active service in the national Congress at the last regular election by W. J. Fields, is to be one of the candidates from the Ninth, but it is believed that Bennett's recent defeat will militate against him.

Another Republican who is being mentioned for the place is Homer B. Bryson of Carlisle. Mr. Bryson was a member of the Republican campaign committee which had charge of the recent campaign in Kentucky, and is a strong factor in Republican affairs in the Ninth district. He was a candidate for the nomination for Railroad Commissioner at the last convention, but withdrew in the interest of harmony.

The Democrats are looking for a candidate, as they do not expect the election go to a Republican by default, and they do expect to fight the Republicans all along the line next year, when a State ticket will be in the field.

Inspector Todd Files Report.

At Frankfort State Inspector and Examiner McKenzie R. Todd, has filed his report with Governor Willson on an inspection made of the Eastern, Central and Western Kentucky asylums. The work of inspecting these institutions commenced in July and was completed in October. Len S. Merrimee, of Louisville, assisted the inspector. The report was filed with the Governor comprises about ninety typewritten pages and is said to be one of the most thorough investigations ever made of these institutions. The inspector praises the work of the bi-partisan Board of Control in the management of the institutions, and states that the excellent work done by this board is noticeable and the beneficial results from the operation of the law cannot be estimated. The report says that there has been great improvement in all of the institutions—the members of the board have given practically their entire time to the work and have worked together harmoniously with an eye single to the betterment of the conditions of these institutions.

Free Dyspepsia Sample

Sufferers from indigestion are waking up to the fact that peppermint lozenges, charcoal and "dyspepsia cures" are only makeshifts in the cure of so troublesome a complaint as chronic indigestion. What is required is something that will not only relieve but which will tone and train the digestive apparatus to again do its work normally, and this these simple remedies cannot do. There is something more to the cure of indigestion than sweetening the breath, and yet a remedy that only contains digestive ingredients will not cure permanently, as the basis of indigestion is poor bowel circulation, and that requires a scientific laxative. We know of no remedy that combines these requirements better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been sold for a quarter of a century.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative tonic, a scientific blending of natural ingredients for the cure of constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sour stomach, sick headache and similar complaints. Its ingredients will so strengthen and tone the stomach and bowel muscles usually, and when that has been accomplished your trouble is over. Fannie Stuart, Staunton, Va., was a long-time sufferer, as was O. Tuck, Blackburn, Mo., and they both found their cure with this remedy. They became cured of their troubles, and were at best only temporary relief. They first accepted Dr. Caldwell's offer of a free sample bottle, which he willingly sends to anyone who forwards name and address. Later, free sample, they bought Syrup Pepsin of their druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, B. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.—take the advice received and be well.

All the talking we can do in favor of FOX RIDGE will not convince you of its superior quality half so rapidly as a sample load.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Took Him at His Word.

The old couple were eating their first meal with their son after his return from college.

"Tell us, John," said the father, "what have you learned at college?" "Oh, lots of things," said the son as he recited his course of studies. "Then," he concluded, "I also studied logic."

"Logic," said the old man. "What is that, my boy?"

"Well," replied the young fellow, "let me give you a demonstration. How many chickens are on that dish, father?"

"Two," said the father.

"Well," said John, "I can prove that there are three." Then he stuck his fork in one and said, "That is one, isn't it?"

"Yes," said the father.

"And this is two?" sticking his fork in the second.

"Yes," replied the father again.

"Well, don't one and two make three?" said John triumphantly.

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed the father. "You have learned things at college. Mother," continued the old man to his wife, "I will give you one of the chickens to eat, I'll take the other, and John can have the third."—Tit-Bits.

The Retort Courteous.

"Now," said the suffragette orator, sweeping the audience with her eagle eye, "I see Mr. Dobbs sitting down there in the third row—a man who has condescended to come here tonight and listen to our arguments. He has heard what I have had to say, and I think we should like to hear from him and get a man's view of our cause. Mr. Dobbs, tell us what you think of the suffragettes."

"Oh, I c-c-couldn't, m-m-ma'am," stammered Dobbs, "I r-r-really c-c-could not. Th-there are l-l-l-ladies p-p-present."—Harper's Weekly.

An Exhibition Party

"Men are very complex," wrote Marjorie to her girl friend. "I think we girls are slow to believe it, because men keep telling us that we are complex, and so, of course, we naturally come to think that they are not."

"You see, my announcement party went off beautifully. The girls were sweet and admitted they were surprised, instead of being snippy and saying they'd known it before."

"But they kept insisting on seeing Frederick. They positively clamored. When found he was coming West for a week I promised them all sorts of things. To tell the truth, I wanted them to see him, for he is that lovely frosted-temple type that we've always raved over but seldom found."

"So I told Frederick that I wanted to give a party for him and the girls. Flora had suggested a party and she had added, 'That is, if you can land it.' Her words and her manner decided me."

"Frederick seemed pleased, but he said that of course, his time was short. Then, when I said I was to have the luncheon here at home, he said it was sweet of me and he was flattered, but would I mind if he changed the plan and invited the girls to meet us downtown as his guests, since every minute during the day counted twenty with him? That sounded lovely to me, so we called up all the girls and set the time for Wednesday—he chose the day. Then he engaged the English room at his hotel for us, and I was supremely happy."

"But I made one mistake. I told him it was to be an exhibition party, for the girls wanted to know if he was real. And that's what I called it all along."

"Wednesday came and Flora called up to say she was all but ill, and unless I was sure of the man she would not come."

"Sure, of the man!" I exclaimed. "Why, what do you mean?"

"She said I was 'so cunningly naive.' That made me furious."

"As I started to go downtown brother Tom stopped me and asked all about it. Then he said, 'I think it's pretty tough on the man to be trotted out this way just to show his paces. Why didn't you let me head off this thing? I might have saved you. But, go on; he'll square anything that may happen, no doubt.'"

"That sounded very mysterious, not to say ominous. You can guess how it made me feel—sort of as if I had a dentist engagement on my mind but didn't quite know what was the matter."

"I reached the English room a little early and there were six beautiful bunches of violets for us girls and at my place was a note that I was awfully afraid to read. Frederick had written:

"My dearest Girl—I am coming on the 1:10 train from Hammond. I had to meet the president of the road at the works this morning very unexpectedly. But I'll join you for the salad, and don't wait. Tell the girls who are there how flattered I am to know they have honored me by coming. So sorry, dear."

"It was a note that I could show to the girls, so I did, and I will never forget how Flora took it and her smile—the cat! I still felt as if I had a dentist engagement, but the luncheon was delightful, for Frederick does things delightfully. At the salad course he came—by long-distance telephone from Hammond. I made Flora, who sat next to me, talk to him to prove it. The only train he could get reached Chicago at 3:15. But he ordered a box for us at the matinee and he would try to see us there."

"Of course I believed him, and I'm sure the girls did—and it was true. And he had chosen the best play in town and a stage box for us, too. We all liked it, especially Flora. She was positively hilarious, but I didn't like her smile—it can be so worldly wise."

"After the second act another note came. It said:

"Dearest. Just in. Am in a violent state of mind at this mixup. Could not do anything else. Will see you after the third act for a minute. And tonight, dear, I'll explain the whole tiresome business."

"I passed the note around, for I was so glad he was really coming. And it was a nice note."

"He came. Flora continued to smile until he appeared, and then she murmured some supposedly graceful thing about having a 'great admiration for good management and appreciation'—which might have meant anything."

"He had to slip away as the curtain went up, but, as Tom says, 'What of that?' He came. And he had a motor car at the door to take us all home—so I really can't see why Flora keeps on smiling in the way she does. She didn't see much of him, but she saw him. And Frederick couldn't help it at all. We've talked it over and he's convinced me of that—he and Tom."

"Tom is so comforting and helpful, too. He said, 'Sure, he couldn't help it, sis. Now, don't go to making it hot for him because he wasn't at that blooming party. He came afterward, which was a long way to come. And a man can't help business surprises. But remember this hereafter: A man doesn't care to be exhibited before a bunch of women. Wait till afterward, when he comes into the role of possessor. It's much easier, then to put over an exhibition party.'"

Christmas Day

To rule and reign with gentle sway,
The King of Love was born today.
No palace walls enclosed him round,
But in a manger was he found;
That so the boastful world might see
The greatness of humility.

He came, a child, in lovely grace,
That so a child might seek his face;
So poor was he, the humblest born
Might come, without a fear of scorn.
To all mankind he showed the way,
And ushered in the dawn of day.

And so, with grateful love and praise,
We hail this blessed day of days.
The children's joy, the poor man's feast,
The star of hope to great and least;
When holy angels come to earth,
And sing anew a Savior's birth!

GIVE THE SHOP-GIRL HER DUES

by KATHERINE POPE

IN an excellent short story published not long ago, O. Henry gave to his shop-girl heroine a colossal character, emphasized that in her were combined the notable attributes of Hercules, Joan of Arc, Una, Job and Little Red Riding Hood. And at this season of the year—"glad Christmas days"—it easily might seem to a less sympathetic person than the regretted O. Henry that the shop-girl most stands in need of the strength of Hercules, the heroism of Joan of Arc, the truthfulness and other singular excellencies of Una, the patience of Job. Think what it must mean, from eight to six, or eight to ten, as the case may be, to face and serve the rattled throngs that are now surging through the shops, think of the strain on endurance and nerve, on temper and manners. The wonder is not that she often comes up to the demands on her, but that she ever does.

Some of the veterans, survivors of many hard-fought Christmas battlefields, are marvels; may be seen at fag-end of day still alert, though drooping; still clear-headed, though with conscious effort; still with courteous attitude in their serving, though those they serve have lost the last shred of any politeness with which they may have started out.

Compare the manners of some spoiled darling, some indulged, arrogant child of wealth, with the dignity and patience and sweetness often shown by the girl behind the counter. The one self-centered, of most restricted vision, capricious, petty; the other self-effacing, far-seeing, charitable, big. Caleb in search of a wife might well pursue his quest along the aisles of the big stores, find womanly ideal standing there behind the counter.

They are not all caricatures of fashion, with hair tortured into latest exaggeration, frocks cheap copies of showy splendors; not all more given to powder and rouge than to soap and water. And in the attainment of the so highly-desirable neatness and trimness heroism again has to come to the fore, it is no easy matter after long hours of labor to labor more, take pains for personal cleanliness, sew and darn when eyes are heavy, back is aching. Heroines every one of them that make a good show.

I know a girl in a fashionable candy shop that every other night washes and irons that she may be presentable the next day. Her moderate wage is the chief part of the family support, there is not enough money for enough blouses to last the week, and so the midnight laundrying is done as a matter of course. But how pretty and sweet and fresh the girl does manage to look in her snowy white and well brushed black; much better dressed, she seems to me, than the woman of fuss and feathers.

What little mothers they are, a lot of them, simple affectionate, domestic creatures—though so often characterized as vain, shallow, foolishly ambitious, thinking only of dress and "dates." I know one girl that worked in one of the department stores which keep open evenings at Christmas time, who the night before Christmas did not leave the store until midnight, then after traveling an hour on the street cars to her home stayed up hours to trim a wonderful Christmas tree for the children of the family, the bunch of little ones the poor seem always to have with them. I know another girl that at this season goes down unusually early mornings to arrange "stock," comes home unusually late evenings; but after dinner cheerfully dons kitchen apron and helps with giant plum pudding and other Christmas preparation that yearly is repeated in honor of old England and the home left behind when there was made search for fortune in the rich land of America. These are just two instances, the one quite commonplace, unheroic, but you may pick up a few for yourself by eavesdropping a bit in your shopping; observing among the buyers the many shop-girls purchasing toys and silver "pusher," children's gloves and sweater, or gray dress for mammy, muffler for daddy.

Of course there is any number of pert, incompetent girls that wait on hapless customers, rather keep hapless customers waiting, but they have been pictured with enough frequency, this sort repeatedly held up as typical, thereby obscuring the virtues of the many worthy ones following the profession of "waiting on." For some time past I have been gathering data, making experiment; and have found it the rule rather than exception that courtesy meets with courtesy. "Soft and fair go far in a day," not only on highway but in the miles of space in a huge department store.

A man said to me recently: "How little of church is brought into the Christmas of today." And how sadly true this is—"church" in this connection standing for whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are good, of full import to all religions. And bullying and bullying a shop-girl at this season seems about as far from "lovely and good" as one may wander. Put yourself in her place, remembering previous failures of your own when bodily weariness snapped strained nerves, broke down poise.

Ye gods and little fishes, in what condition is the shop-girl to "enjoy" Christmas! I am sure if I were she all I would ask of good Saint Nicholas would be a dark, airy room far, far away from people (from man, and especially woman); a great, soft bed where I could stretch out long and wide; silence and sleep forever and forever. No dreams to disturb that sleep; no vision of past haggling, no vision of wearisome "exchanges" to come.

But the reality is a long way from this that I would ask. Do you suppose such a proud wage earner as she would be content to let Christmas day go by without displaying wealth and power? No, every dependent in the household must partake of her bounty, every pensioner be given good proof of what it means to have her dress up and go down town every day. Nothing of niggard is the shop-girl at Christmas, she is as much a Lady Bountiful as any millionairess of them all.

What a creature! A "Hercules, a Joan of Arc, a Una, a Job" and a Lady Bountiful on eight dollars and less a week!

CHRISTMAS TIME.

I have often thought of Christmas time, when it has come round, apart from the veneration due to its sacred name and origin, if anything belonging to it can be apart from that—as a good time, a kind, forgiving, charitable, pleasant time.—Charles Dickens.

Will Roth Munson, a colored boy, aged about ten years, was arrested Saturday night and lodged in jail by Patrolman Thomas. Munson, it is said, in company with another boy, has made frequent visits to the chicken house of Mr. J. L. Earlywine, on Henderson street, relieving it of many fowls. Saturday night Mr. Earlywine heard someone in the house and going out saw the boy making off with a chicken. His first impulse was to fire on the fleeing thief but seeing him to be a mere boy started in pursuit and captured him. Munson was caught a few squares from Mr. Earlywine's home and turned over to Patrolman Thomas. In court yesterday afternoon Munson was sentenced to the reform school.

SLAYS HIS PARAMOUR

Jealousy and Liquor Causes William Kelly to Shoot and Kill Lizzie Mathers

CORONER HOLDS INQUEST

Jury Returns Verdict in Accordance With Evidence Given by Three Witnesses

Chas. Kelley, alias Bus Cantrill, shot and killed his paramour, Lizzie Mathers, in the negro suburb of Ruckerville, Sunday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock. The difficulty is said to have been the result of jealousy on the part of Kelley and followed a drunken quarrel.

The shooting took place at the home of Kelley. His victim was shot through the head, the bullet entering at a point about two inches above the right ear and fracturing the skull, death resulted instantly.

After shooting the woman Cantrill left the house, going to his mother's home in Lyleville and then to the home of Mrs. Welsh. He was placed under arrest by Chief of Police J. C. Elgin, while he was on his way to the plant of the Baldwin Packing Co., where he was employed, and landed in jail.

Coroner Rudolph Davis was summoned to the scene of the tragedy, arriving a few minutes later and took charge of the remains of the woman. Dr. Wm. Kenney performed an autopsy to determine the nature of the wound.

Yesterday morning at the court house Coroner Davis held the inquest. Besides the evidence of Dr. Kenney, Mary Montague and Sallie Fitch, who were witnesses to the affair testified. Coroner Davis conducted the inquiry before a jury composed of Sweeney Isgrigg, I. F. McPheeters, W. H. Mappin, H. M. Collins, W. R. Scott and F. P. Lowry.

The Montague woman testified that Kelley had come to the house where he engaged in a quarrel with Lizzie Mathers, running her out of the house two or three times and finally fired his pistol five times through the door. Going into the house he demanded some money which he declared the woman had belonging to him and reloaded his pistol. Giving him the money the Mathers woman started to leave the room when he called to her to come back. She passed through the door which she closed on entering the adjoining room, when Kelley, it was said by the witnesses, raised his revolver and fired through the partition. The woman evidently had her head against the partition, as from the testimony of Dr. Kenney, a portion of the woman's brains were on the wall near the spot where the bullet struck. Sallie Fitch told practically the same story as the Montague woman. Dr. Kenney produced in court the bullet which was taken from the murdered woman's head at the autopsy.

In accordance with the evidence produced at the inquest the Coroner's jury returned the following verdict: "We, the jury, find that Lizzie Mathers came to her death by a pistol shot from the hands of Charles Kelley, alias Bus Cantrill, on Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock, December 11, 1910.

Grief-Stricken Woman Suicides.

Grief stricken over the loss of her husband, who was slain some few months ago by his eldest son, Mrs. Lizzie Reeves, wife of the late Luther Reeves, and formerly of this county, committed suicide Monday morning at her home in Cynthiana, by strangling herself with a stocking.

The death of Mrs. Reeves recalls the sad ending of her husband who met death in an altercation with his son, Thomas Reeves, while they were residents of this county, living near Ruddells Mills. In a difficulty over money matters young Reeves struck his father on the head with a stone, fracturing his skull and from the effects of which he died a few days later. On his death bed the elder Reeves requested that his son should not be prosecuted as he was the aggressor. Young Reeves was arraigned in the county court, however, but acquitted at the examining trial.

A few weeks ago the family moved to Cynthiana to reside. The sad incident bore heavily upon the mind of the mother of the boy who had taken the life of his father, and it is believed her mental faculties became deranged, resulting in the suicide. Three sons and a daughter survive.

—The Sharpsburg World says: "Mr. James Whaley died suddenly at his home in this town at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night, December 7, 1910.

He had not been feeling well for about three weeks, but his illness was not of such a serious nature as to cause alarm, and his passing away was totally unexpected, being due to the infirmities due to old age. He was born October 24, 1824, and was a successful farmer until his retirement several years ago, when he built a residence in town and came here to reside. He was thrice married, and survived by his last wife and the following children:

Mrs. J. P. Adamson, of Winchester; Mrs. Alice Baird, of Cleveland, Ohio; Joseph M. Whaley, of near Bethel, and C. Bruce Whaley, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Mr. Whaley also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Sallie Branch, of Mason county, and Mrs. Nancy Myers, of Paris. Mr. Whaley enjoyed unusually good health all his life and was active until his last illness. A good citizen, one who had the respect of all who knew him, has passed away. The funeral will be held Saturday, tomorrow, but the hour was not named as we went to press. The burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery."

Jackson had presented Alice Waford, a woman of color, with his photograph, and Scott, who, it is said, was a frequent visitor to the home, took exception to the attentions Jackson was paying the woman. Perforating the picture and writing a threatening note which was left at Jackson's home, he took as a means to break off the relations between the two. JOHN WAS NOT AFRAID.

Until He Knew With Whom He Was Dealing so Strenuously.

"This must stop right here!" said John Grout, as he put one foot out of bed and began reaching around in the dark for his trousers.

"John!" called his wife, "please don't be foolish. Lie down and be quiet!"

"No!" he snarled. "I'm going to give that young man down there a drubbing that'll make him want to keep away as far as possible from this house in the future. Here it is after 12 o'clock, and—"

"John," Mrs. Grout pleaded, "stop! Don't go down there, please!"

But John had found his trousers, and ignoring his wife's words, he hurried into the hall. Then he stole downstairs through the dark, and in about half a minute there were sounds of falling stands and tumbling chairs and shaking chandeliers. The old man had grasped his antagonist around the neck right at the start and soon had him choked into submission. Then he tied the fellow full of knots, bumped his head against the newel post several times, and finally threw him down the front steps.

When he got back up stairs his wife and daughter, pale and quaking with terror, flung themselves upon his breast.

"What's the matter?" he demanded.

"That was a burglar!" they cried. "Heavens!" he gasped, getting sick at the stomach. "Why didn't you tell me before! I thought it was Ethel's beau."—Judge.

The Mystery Lady.

(Extracts from the Woodville Daily Bugle.)

Monday—A very stylish looking lady got off the noon train to-day. She is a stranger to Woodville. Elizabeth Boggs, the genial station master, says that he never saw her before.

Tuesday—Mrs. Lavina Jones is the name of the stranger who came to town yesterday. She is stopping at the Hayes House, and since her arrival Mine Host Umbstrutter has had his office filled with the younger set of men about town.

Wednesday—Mrs. Lavina Jones when questioned to-day as to her reasons for visiting Woodville, stated that she did not feel free to make mention of them. It is rumored that she is here in connection with a certain estate that has been in litigation for some years.

Her Test for Lodgers.

A certain widow who kept a boarding house in a Maine town had a strong bias against the theological views of the Universalists, and enforced a strict "test act" against all applicants for lodgings.

One day an old sea captain happened along to ask for rooms.

"But what do you believe?" asked the widow.

"Oh, most anything," replied the captain.

"Do you believe there is a hell?"

"Sure," was the reply.

"Well," parried the widow, "how many do you think will go there?"

The captain cautiously remarked that he thought 20,000 would be a fair estimate.

The widow paused, then stated that he could come in. "Twenty thousand," she said, "is better than none."—Boston Herald.

Ornithology vs. High Finance.

A certain Pittsburg millionaire visited Philadelphia not long ago, and his business leading him to the splendid Academy of the Natural Sciences, he found himself walking in and out among the cases of stuffed birds. There are thousands of life like feathered creatures gathered there, and the collection is considered one of the finest in America. The custodian could not help praising it all with excusable warmth.

"I've never figured it out," said he, at last, "but it is safe to say, at a guess, that these stuffed birds are worth not less than $200,000."

"Heavens!" exclaimed the man of money, "is it possible? What are they stuffed with?"

Hard to Please.

O woman in your hours of ease
You spend much time on things like these:

Hats, bonnets, ribbons, sidecombs,

bows,

Fans, rippers and furbelows.

You think o'er much and spend a mint

On things we have no right to print.

As we have said, you think of these,

O woman, in your hours of ease.

And also in your hours of woe,

O woman, woman, ain't it so?

He Spoke His Mind.

Two Irish farmers who had not seen each other for a long time, met at a fair. They had a lot of things to tell each other. "Shure, it's married I am," said Murphy. "You don't tell me so," said Moran. "Faix, yes," said Murphy, "an' I've got a fine healthy boy, which the neighbors say is the very picture of me." Moran looked for a moment at Murphy, who was not, to say the least, remarkable for his good looks, and then said, "Och, well, what's the harm so long as the child's healthy?"—Dublin Gazette.

Woman's Love

"Th last I heard of Stubby Gruger he was down in the Matavas Valley with a neat little bunch of horses that was bringing him in more money than he knew what to do with," said the stocktender, as he soused a breeching into a pail of castile suds. "You know what I think, so there's no need of me saying it," delicately remarked the Hair Circle Y boy. "Honest to Henrietta Jane—" protested the stocktender. "He has to let his wife handle it. She wouldn't have it no other. Stubby's reformed."

"Oh, if he's married," admitted the Hair Circle Y boy.

"Sure," said the stocktender. "Of course, Stubby'd know what to do with it if he was left to himself. He'd give it all to the first tin-horn that he met for the privilege of pushing chips around over a table for a few wee small hours. Great little old Stubby."

"Still, that was the way he made his stake. Heard about that, didn't you? Well, it was the time he got fired from the Flying Dollar. He got into a game at Hermosa with a month's pay, his saddle, bridle, blankets, spurs, chaps and slicker, and came out of it without 'em. If the marshal hadn't taken his gun away from him, he'd have lost that, too. Anyway, Sam Jacobs let him out and he was loading around town wondering if he wouldn't have to wash dishes for the Bon Ton to pay his board, when a Boston shoe millionaire came in on the stage and braced Ed McVicker to find him a guide that would take him across the Limestone Range to Garnet Basin, where they'd stuck him on some mining claims."

"We haven't got any professional guide around here just now, but I guess I know a gentleman who can take you, though," says Ed. So he sends for Stubby and introduces him. "This is the gentleman I thought might accommodate you," he says to the affluent waddy, jerking his thumb at Stubby.

"I'm a plain spoken man," says the Bostoner, sort of swelling out. "I don't want no gentleman," says he, "and I don't want no accommodation. I want a handy man who knows the country and can cook a halfway decent meal and I propose to pay him well for it. He won't be accommodating me. He'll be doing what I want him to do because he needs the money and I've got the money, so there's all there is to that. If this fellow is the best you can get and you think that he can take me to Garnet Basin, I'll give him the job, but I can't say I like his looks."

"He said that with Stubby right here?" interrupted the Hair Circle Y boy.

The Kind of Fool He Was.

"Sure," replied the stocktender. "He was just that kind of a fat old fool. Ed told me he looked for trouble right there and got behind the stove, but Stubby didn't make a move. He certainly seemed surprised, but the next minute he said, as meek as Moses, that he'd take the contract and hoped to give good satisfaction."

"Very good," says Boston. "Now you go out and get whatever is necessary for the trip. You can say that I'll pay for it here. I'm not going to take any chances of your taking my money and spending it for whiskey. You'll get your pay when we get to Garnet and not before."

"That's perfectly agreeable to me," says Stubby, kind of husky, but still meek. So he hikes out and hires a couple of horses and a pack mule, and buys grub and a cooking outfit, and they start out across the desert. At noon they camped and got dinner at Parker's Coulee, and the Bostoner kicked like a bay steer at every last thing. He didn't like the alkali in the water that Stubby boiled the coffee in, he didn't like the flapjacks, and he said that the way the bacon was cooked turned his stomach, and he cursed Stubby out for not getting him a horse that rode easier.

"I'm mighty sorry," said Stubby. "I'll try to do better."

Stubby Takes Revenge. "Along about sundown, as they was gettin' to Pass Creek, he began again about the horse, so Stubby reaches out and grabbed him by the collar and pulled him out of the saddle into a bunch of prickly pear."

"There," says Stubby. "Now walk, darn you, and see how you like that for a change!"

"You blasted ruffian!" says Boston.

"He started to say something else, but Stubby slid off his canteen and cuffed him up to a peak, first one side and then the other. 'Now you'll try to be good, or we'll have a heap more difficulty,' he says. 'This is the joyful moment I've been a-holdin' in for ever since I seen you.'"

"Are you going to kill me?" says Boston, whimpering.

"That depends," says Stubby. "If you behave, I won't much more than half-kill you. You hike along for that bunch of green yonder and I'll tell you the rest when we get there."

"Here, get up and unsaddle these horses and picket 'em," says Stubby, giving him a kick. "I've never had a millionaire funkier for me on the trail yet, but I'm going to now. Picket the horses and then go and rustle wood and water, and I'll tell you what to do after that. You and me is going to take our time crossing the Limestone. We've got a week's grub, and we'll eat it all up before we get in." "Boston got up and reached for his rear pocket and Stubby collared him again and took a little .22 silver-plated bug exterminator away from him. Then he slapped him some more and threw in some kicks for good measure. 'Now, will you picket them horses?' he says."

"I'll do anything you say," says Boston, and he limped off with the lariats.

"For four days Stubby kept that fellow on the trail packing wood and drawing water and put in his own time studying up new names to call him by. Then Boston got into a plum thicket where two cinnamon bears were feeding and they got after him and one knocked him down and was beginning to mau him when Stubby came up and unlimbered a Sharps on 'em."

"When Boston come to, Stubby had him all fixed up and bandaged and the bears skun and was cooking bear steak on the coals, and Boston was so grateful that he started the ranch in the Matavas Valley and made Stubby foreman. It didn't take Stubby more than two years to cure him out of it, either."

"Stubby must have lost his grip if it took him that long," commented the Hair Circle Y boy. "But I'm glad he's reformed, anyway."

The Threat.

The Bingeses, mother and daughter, had long outstayed their visit at their country friend's house. Moreover, they evinced no sign of going away, nor did the mother seem to be in any way affected by the strong hints to go which the overtaxed hostess threw out from time to time. Finally, forbearance exhausted, the entertainer decided to reach the mother through her daughter. So one day, calling the little visitor to her, she said: "Maimie, when do you expect to go home?"

"Oh, I'm sure I don't know," was the careless reply. "We've several other places to stop yet."

"Well when do you go on to the next place?"

"Can't even tell that. Mama says it's immaterial to her just when she'll leave here."

"But my dear child," exclaimed the exasperated hostess, doesn't your mother realize how high living is these days?"

"Oh yes; she knows how high it is. That's why we left the city."

"Well, Maimie, I cannot afford to entertain visitors any longer, and I wish you'd tell your mother that at once!"

"Is that an insult?" rejoined the child, turning haughtily to the speaker.

"Why do you ask that, child?" "Because when we're insulted we go on to the next place!"—Judge's Library.

Australians, with a fine climate, believe in enjoying themselves, and there are plenty of facilities. Thus in Sydney there are parks and squares and public gardens with a total area of 4335 acres. Sixteen miles from the city—a shilling excursion train fare—is the picturesque National park, containing 36,810 acres, preserved in their natural state. A similar reserve called Kurin-gai Chase, comprising 25,000 acres of land chiefly of densely wooded hills skirting for many miles around numerous tidal arms of Broken bay, is also held for the enjoyment of the public forever. Melbourne has no fewer than 5400 acres of recreation grounds in or near the city. Adelaide is surrounded by a belt of park lands, and has about 2300 acres set apart for the public benefit; nor are Perth and Hobart and Brisbane and some of the fine inland towns less well provided for.

Artificial nitrates are made extensively in Norway and sold in competition with the natural product of Chile. The annual production of nitrate of soda in Chile is 1,800,000 tons. In 1920 this may be expected to be increased to at least 2,500,000 tons. At the same time and at the same rate of production, the Norwegian production will amount over 300,000 tons, or only 12 per cent of the Chilean. It is probably, however, that other factories may be established, which will largely increase the total production of artificial nitrates. From experiments made in various countries it may be concluded that artificial nitrate is as good a fertilizer as Chile saltpeter, and on some lands a better one.

Artificial—not "imitation"—rubies are manufactured in a little factory, in Paris. The successful commercial production of the artificial ruby is said by some enthusiasts to have made inevitable the doom of the ruby mine. These artificial ruby gems are in glowing beauty of color, hardness, durability and chemical composition identical with the natural ruby of the mine. So absolute is this identity that the assertion is made, the usurers of great cities now refuse to take rubies in pawn because they cannot distinguish between natural rubies and the artificial. Their use in jewelry is widespread.

"OF SUCH IS THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN"

THE PRINCE OF PEACE

By JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL

"What means this glory round our feet,"
The Magi mused, "more bright than morn?"
And voices chanted clear and sweet,
"Today the Prince of Peace is born."

"What means that star," the shepherds said,
That brightens through the rocky glen?"
And angels, answering overhead,
Sang, "Peace on earth, good-will to men."

And they who do their souls no wrong,
But keep at eve the faith of morn,
Shall daily hear the angel's song,
"Today the Prince of Peace is born!"

The Way

"When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy."

For men in banked cabins in the arctic snows and men in the wind beaten ships on remote seas, for men in tropic jungles and men in forgotten wastes, this day is Christmas. We who spend the day in the friendly security of cities and draw about us the familiar intimacies of home and daily friendships are apt to forget the wonder of this, and the significance. But whether they realize it or not, men draw together during these hours. And this is to follow the star the wise men saw over Bethlehem.

Christmas for most of us is given to the closest of ties and the spirit of it is only a warmer glow of well used affections. But the deepest and mightiest things are the nearest, and in the heart of this day is the hope of the race. Two thousand years ago there was one who spoke from a mountain. His message was the brotherhood of all men. Another time he said: "I am the way, the truth, and the life." To-day men follow the way though they do not know, and obey the truth though they do not see, and live the life though they are unconscious of its pulse beat through the world. For the way is the way of the race marching painfully to its far goal.

The life of the individual and the lives of nations are borne upon the bosom of a great tide. Wise men call it by different names, but no man lives effectually save in its full current. Whether we state it in terms of religion, or of philosophy, or policy, its law is but the divine platitude of the brotherhood of man.

The wise man begs to express much more than proverbial wishes that his entire clientele may enjoy the merriest of merry Christmases.

Crown the Christ Child King

At Christmas time we celebrate the birthday of our King. The wise men came from the far east, attracted by the light of the star, to find and worship the King. This blessed day is lighted by a star that ought to attract our attention and lead us in the same direction and to the same end. This time of music and glad festivities should lay especial emphasis on the kinship of Jesus of Nazareth. It is our privilege to see, in the Babe of Bethlehem, the King of kings and Lord of lords. That vision should be more clear to us than to the wise men of old. They had none of the helps that quicken our eyesight. We may remember the life he lived, the work he did, the sacrifice he made, and the influence he has exerted and is exerting to this very hour.

"Never man spake like this man," concerning God, man, sin, life, death, truth, immortality, and "the vast forever." He has drawn the intellect of the world to himself.

His ideals have inspired civilizations and turned the currents of history into new channels. He has compelled the world to accept his ideas of greatness and the value of human life. He has drawn the art of the world to himself, for the greatest paintings of the ages reflect his glory. He has drawn the music of the world to himself, for the mighty masterpieces of this realm tell the story of his work and influence. He has drawn the thought of the world to himself, for there never was one about whom so many books have been written. His life and words have been the inspiration of the modern altruism that is doing so much to lift humanity to higher and better levels. He is rapidly drawing the heart of the world to himself —is drawing the lives of men to himself.

He shall reign, "King of kings and Lord of lords." Because he humbled himself and made himself of no reputation, and took on him the form of a servant, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross, therefore God hath highly exalted him and given him a name that is above every name. If we will not crown him Lord of all in our hearts here, we shall yet be called upon to crown him King of eternity. Let us crown the Christ Child our King in the here and now.

Keeping Christmas Joy

Christmas is a day of joy, but joy should not be allowed to die out of our lives next morning. It should stay with us ever after. We should sing the Christmas songs all the new year. We should carry the peace of God in our hearts continually hereafter. We should learn from this time to find the beauty and the good will in all things, and to show the world that we believe what we say we believe—that since God loves us, and Jesus Christ is our friend, "all's well with the world." They who receive and tell of God's unspeakable gift of Christ as a Redeemer may carry the gladdest sort of Christmas around with them all the year in their hearts.

Our early days will not, indeed, come back; yet is Christmas an Indian summer evening to the venerable—a reviving reminiscence of youth.

The Primrose Path to Ruin.
"Prosperity has ruined many a man," remarked the moralizer. "Well," rejoined the demoralizer, "if I was going to be ruined at all I'd want prosperity to do it."—Detroit Free Press.

How the Greeks Bake.
A very primitive oven is used by the Greek peasants for baking bread. A fire is first lit inside to heat the fabric; then the embers are raked out and the dough placed within. When the oven grows cool the bread is supposed to be baked. All the ovens are situated in the open air, and several houses usually share one between them.—Wide World Magazine.

Tragedy Narrowly Averted.
An alarming subsidence took place at Cleland, Lanarkshire, Scotland, caused by the giving way of an old pit shaft. The subsidence occurred under a house and a large cavity was caused at the back door. When the woman of the house, with a child in her arms, made to come out she nearly stepped into a hole ten feet deep. She retained her hold on the door handle, however, and dragged herself back.

Neat Rebuke.
The anecdote is still told in Vermont of the reply which Mrs. Chittenden, the governor's wife, made to some squeamish visitors who objected to meeting the farmhands at dinner. "We usually all dine together," said the first lady of Vermont, "but I really think there should be two tables set—the first for the farmhands, because they have been working very hard and must be very hungry, and the second for the rest of us, who can very well wait."

Mere Coincidence.
A farmer of Washington county, Maryland, who had had many chickens stolen, set a gun in the chicken house that would be discharged the minute the door was opened. The other night the gun was discharged and the next day three men in Hagerstown were reported confined to their homes by "rheumatism."

Many Like Him.
"It is a terrible thing," said the prisoner, "to be known by a number instead of a name, and to feel that all my life I shall be an object of suspicion among the police." "But you will not be alone, my friend," replied the philanthropic visitor; "the same thing happens to people who own automobiles."

Monster Whale Drifted Ashore.
A seventy-foot whale weighing fully fifty tons, the largest ever seen in the district recently drifted ashore at Cloughton Wyke, six miles north of Scarborough, England. It had formerly been seen five miles off Whitby, where it was in the direct line of coasting vessels and a danger to shipping. It has been cut up, carted ashore, and buried at the expense of the board of trade.

Didn't Catch Him.
A Missourian who bought some Texas land and wanted to unload it told a prospective buyer that it had "doubled in value since I bought it." "But," said the other, "you offered to sell it to me for the same price you paid. How has it doubled in value?" "Well, you see, I gave twice as much as it was worth."—Kansas City Star.

The Swaddling Clothes of the Infant Jesus

ONE of the most famous cathedrals in Germany possesses as its most sacred relic the swaddling clothes of the Infant Jesus. It is a sweet and beautiful possession which many visitors come from afar to venerate.

One Christmas eve the sacristan was arranging the treasure confided to his care, which was to be exposed to view on the great fete of the morrow. The sacristan was a little, hump-backed man, bandy-legged and red-nosed, and it was to this ugly person that the privilege was reserved of always caring for the adored relic. We must not be astonished at this, but must reflect that often the most humble and unattractive are chosen to be nearer the kingdom of heaven. But, unfortunately, the hump-backed sacristan had no idea that he was one of the elect, and the marvelous character of his task gave him no extraordinary emotion. During the 20 years that he had snuffed the candles of the cathedral, and been in daily contact with the treasure, he had received no enlightenment; he never made the sign of the cross before touching the sacred linen, and he treated it with the same mechanical indifference with which he had hammered the soles of the boots in his former occupation of cobbler.

This day, on opening the cupboard in which the linen of the Infant Jesus was carefully enclosed, he whistled a little dance tune and thought: "Ugh! It's not nice weather outside."

A violent wind was blowing in the town, unhooking the signboards of the shops, and making the chimneys shake on all the pointed roofs.

The man, on entering the sacristy, listened to the moaning of the wind, and thought that the fury of nature did not accord well with the fete for which he was preparing; but doubtless there was a striking symbol in the storm, and the unloosed elements might calm themselves suddenly when the words of pardon and pity were said: "On earth peace, good will toward men."

The sacristan went to put his coarse hand carelessly on the Divine relic, when an unheard-of event happened.

The window in the sacristy opened suddenly, pushed by a great rush of wind. The storm entered like an invasion of the Barbarians; it rushed over all in the room, knocking down the sacred objects, and the linen of the Infant Jesus, taken up in the whirling tempest, was blown out of the window. The hump-back remained for a moment stupid and stricken, then recovering himself, he rushed into the church, crying:

"Saint Joseph! Saint Martin! Help! Help! They have taken the linen!"

At this alarming cry the people ran from all parts. The priests in their supplees, the beadle in his cap, the Swiss with his halberd, the old women who had been praying, ran with pale faces and terrified eyes, and everyone cried out:

"What are you saying? Holy Mother! what are you saying?"

The little hump-back tore to the door; he seemed stricken with madness.

"The linen!—what misery!—the linen! By the window! A puff of wind! Run quickly to catch it again!"

Then in the road was sudden tumult! everyone began to run in pursuit of the stolen relic.

The noses turned up to the houses resembled notes of interrogation. "There! there!" said some one. "No, no!"

They discovered it at last. It was lying close to a crest high up on the roof of the church. One would have said that the fretwork column, chilled with cold, had taken refuge in the sheltering folds.

"There it is! there it is!" Everyone cried out together. But how were they to reach it?

"It's the sacristan's duty to go up; it was he who let it go." The hump-back whistled no longer.

Suddenly a courageous man came forward. He crawled up the columns, he hooked himself to the fretwork, he hung from the projections; after a thousand perils he arrived at the place, and extended his arm to take the relic.

At that moment, the linen unraveled itself and was blown to a neighboring roof.

People rushed to catch it; it waited until the hands were quite close, then it flew off to the other side of the street.

Now began an extraordinary race. From street to street, from roof to roof, the Divine swaddling clothes flew, pursued by the crowd.

What a chase! The priests, red with indignation, stifling their arms, crying orders, and gesticulating madly. The Swiss followed with his useless halberd. The little hump-backed sacristan ran also as fast as his bandy legs would go. And behind came the old women, limping, pitying themselves, and invoking the name of Mary.

The whole town was rapidly raised by this great agitation. To the mad-dened priests and the old devotees was joined a population running and excited. Some brought poles, others brought ladders, and some brought crucifixes, or sprigs of blessed box-tree, with which they thought they could seize the linen, attracted by this holy magnet.

The firemen soon arrived, increasing the disorder of the strident noise with their horns and the galloping of their horses.

But the swaddling-clothes seemed to mock the priests and their exorcisms, the devout with their crucifixes, the firemen with their ladders.

Sometimes the linen placed itself at the edge of a cornice and rolled itself round a chimney. From up there an end of the stuff floated ironically near the crowd, seeming to scoff at it. And when, with difficulty, some one gained the roof, hoping to have caught it—good-by! It would go further yet, without any respect of person.

After an hour of this game, it suddenly went away, and all the crowd could see was a point of white disappearing on the horizon.

In a distant road, aright at the end of the town, in a sordid attic, a woman was holding a new-born child on her knees. She was contemplating it with a somber tenderness. She covered it with kisses, having no other garment to give it than her sad lips.

By the gaping window, with cracked framework and broken panes, the cold and the wind came to usher in a Christmas of misery. The newly-born was rigid and white, like a waxen Jesus.

My God! my God! had he to die thus, the innocent—had he lived only to suffer for an hour? The mother got up and moved about the room, silently, fiercely. Nothing—she could find nothing to protect the little body in all its purity.

She sat down again; she did not weep; tears are a luxury—even her eyes were parched.

Near her there was nothing but wind and cold; they entered, making a clamor like many wooden shoes. They pressed close, with their lugubrious and cold faces—bad magicians come to bring to the newly-born their gifts of agony.

Christmas! Christmas! Ah! that Other that one commiserates, that Child of Bethlehem. He at least had straw in his cradle, and the beasts around warmed him with their breath!

The mother, who could not cry, clenched her fist to curse Christmas.

But her hand fell in the presence of the adorable miracle.

At the gaping window something white floated. It arrived from nothingness. It was like a bird which had come to ask for refuge.

Then softly, the white thing came into the attic. The mother stared. The swaddling-clothes!

And the little naked newly-born was wrapped in the linen of the little Infant Jesus.

Bring the "Star" to Someone

He for whom Christmas is named brought the gift of himself to a world which had nothing—except faith and love—to give him in return, and which for the most part has not so far been disposed to give him even that. Nevertheless, he gave it, and there is no sweeter gift than Christmas giving which is not in the same spirit. We would not for the world discourage the interchange of gifts which come to be customary at this time in families and between friends, where such interchange is prompted by the heart. In spite of the sham and the hypocrisy which have come to overlay much of such giving, the custom tends to the development of the higher qualities. But this is a reminder that the pleasure of the getting ready for Christmas always great where sincere impulse is made the guide among the shops, can be immensely heightened by a getting ready to make happy some dependent soul which now looks forward to no brightness in the day.

To All the People

He does not simply say, Christ is born, but to you he is born; neither does he say, I bring glad tidings, but to you I bring glad tidings of great joy. Furthermore, this joy was not to remain in Christ, but it shall be to all the people.—Martin Luther.

JURORS ARE ACCEPTED

Prosecution and Defense Agree on Jury to Try the Alleged Slayers of John Abner

JUDGE HALBERT ARRIVES

Ed Callihan and Brother of Murdered Man on Ground to Assist in the Prosecution

With the afternoon session of the Bourbon Circuit Court extending until thirty minutes past six o'clock last evening, the jury in the case of the Commonwealth vs. John Davidson, etc., charged with the murder of John Abner in Breathitt county last summer, transferred to the Bourbon Circuit Court on a change of venue, and which was assigned from last Wednesday to Monday, was completed and accepted by both the defense and prosecution.

Special Judge W. C. Halbert, appointed by Governor Willson to sit in the Bourbon Circuit Court during the illness of Judge Robert L. Stout, arrived yesterday morning at 11 o'clock and convened court at 11:30. After listening to motions from the members of the bar, the Breathitt case was called.

The call of the Commonwealth witnesses revealed the presence of fifty-six out of the total number of 61 subpoenaed. After consultation with Ed Callihan and Adam Stacey, special elisors, appointed by the court last week to bring in missing witnesses of the greatest value to the State, Commonwealth's Attorney R. B. Franklin announced that the Commonwealth was ready for trial and Judge Delis Dundon, addressing the court in behalf of the defense, stated that there were several of their witnesses absent, but if the court should resort to the compulsory processes to bring them into court, the defense would answer ready. Judge Halbert adjourned court until 11 o'clock when the selection of the jury was begun.

The jury box was filled, after dismissing W. R. Scott and Lawrence Horton, Clarke Barnett and Ed Burke for cause with the following: Walter Clark, Sweeney Isgrigg, Thos. Maher, Nathan Goodman, Thornwell Tadlock, Granville Denton, W. H. Mappin, C. J. Lancaster, R. M. Childers, Miller Ward and J. W. Payne. The attorneys for the Commonwealth retired for consultation and returning excused Mr. Borland and Mr. Childers. John Clay and John Towles were called the latter being excused for cause and the defense excused Messrs. Tadlock, Clay, Payne, Cranrock, Ward and Denton.

Six jurors were finally accepted by both sides as follows: Walter Clark, W. S. Isgrigg, Thos. Maher, W. H. Mappin and Nathan Goodman. Among the others who were examined and dismissed for cause were Lee T. Beall, Harry Kerslake, W. A. Wallen, Geo. W. Redmon, A. W. Cottingham, L. D. Redmon, A. Willett, King Redmon, R. H. Harp, J. W. Grinnam, John Woods, E. T. Keller, Forrest Thomas, Grant Overby, and those accepted completing the jury were A. F. Padgett, C. A. Weber, J. H. Richards, J. D. Martin, Thos. Paul and N. H. Ecklar.

The jury was remanded to the custody of Deputy Sheriff Ollie Marshall, with the usual instructions in such cases, and with the order to report in court this morning at 8:30 o'clock when they will be sworn and the examination of witnesses will begin.

More than 125 witnesses for the Commonwealth and defense are in the city for the trial. Ed Callihan, of Crockettville, special elisor appointed by the court, arrived yesterday morning on an early interurban car with William Stidham, a star witness for the prosecution and who it is alleged overheard the conversation between the accused in planning the murder of Abner.

Louis Bach and his son of Magoffin county, two other important witnesses for the Commonwealth were brought here by Bailiff William Stacey. Among those attending court are David Abner of Cannel City, a brother of the murdered man who is assisting the prosecution. Attorneys Franklin and Byrd for the prosecution, are also being assisted by Attorney William Grannan and County Attorney George Batterton.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY.

The grand jury, in its report, deprecated the fact that many violations of the minor laws are brought to its attention when such cases ought to be tried in the police, magistrates' and county courts and save them the time and cost necessary for the Commonwealth to investigate and punish the offenders.

In regard to the county jail the report says:

"In a body we visited the county jail and found it in a good and sanitary condition. Jailor Farris is doing his duty in a commendable way and of that institution there is no complaint to be made, insofar as we could see."

"Jailor Farris says that he has a total of twenty-eight prisoners and that without exception, as far as he has heard, they are as contented as possible under the circumstances."

"The building is kept comfortable at all times, the meals served are of a variety of food, well cooked, and the sanitary conditions are of the best."

WHITE SHOOTS NEGRO

Sam Custard is Dangerously Wounded by James Jones on Saturday Afternoon

THREE SHOTS TAKE EFFECT

Would-Be Slayer Makes Good Escape After Shooting and Has Not Been Captured

As the result of a shooting affray which took place at the livery stable of Walter L. Martin, on Eighth street Saturday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock, Sam Custard, colored, aged 33, of Brentsville, a negro village three miles from Paris on the Georgetown pike, is in a dangerous condition with three bullet wounds in his body and James Jones, a white man, is being sought by the police.

There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy and the description given by Custard of his assailant tallies with that given by James Frederickson, a housekeeper, of Nicholas county, who was waiting at the entrance for his wagon. Frederickson says he heard four shots in rapid succession, and that a young white man of medium size with a pistol in his hand, emerged from the room, and as he broke the weapon on the pavement remarked, "you see what I can do when they jump on me."

Custard was in the city Friday afternoon and disposed of a horse to Mr. Martin and returning Saturday afternoon was seated in the office of the livery stable when Jones entered. Demanding to know where the negroes employed were he became very abusive. The man, who is said by Custard to have been under the influence of liquor, would not be quieted and to avoid trouble the negro started out the door leading to the street, when Jones drew a revolver and fired three shots, all of which took effect.

As Custard had his back turned the first shot entered a few inches below the shoulder blade, passing entirely through the body about an inch below the heart. Turning at the first shot the second bullet took effect in the roof of the mouth and lodging behind the right ear, and the third, striking him in the left breast about two inches to the right of the first wound and one inch below the heart also passed through the body.

After firing the shots Jones left the stable going out Eighth street and disappeared. Two colored boys employed at the stable, who were working in the hay loft, did not hear the report of the revolver, and had no knowledge of the affair until returning to the office they saw Custard make his way to the blacksmith shop of W. F. Day, a short distance away. Here it was said the wounded negro told Day that he had been shot by a white man and asked him to assist him to a doctor's office. Custard was taken to the office of Dr. J. T. Brown on Seventh street where the nature of his wounds was determined. He was suffering intensely and bleeding profusely from the wound in his mouth. From latest reports there is a possibility that he will recover.

A few minutes after the shooting Chief of Police Elgin, Patrolmen Thomas, Link and Bishop were on the scene and obtained a description of the man whom they later identified as James Jones, of Jacksonsville. Jones, it is said, has a bad reputation and is a desperate character.

No Extra Pay for Judges.

The petition for a rehearing of the suit involving the constitutionality of the legislative act giving Circuit Judges $1,200 a year increased salary for serving as special judges was over-ruled Wednesday by the Court of Appeals and the judges will not get extra pay.

Adams Must Pay Tax.

The Court of Appeals Thursday affirmed the case of Adams Express Company against Holdrick, Police Judge, from Jefferson county. Some time ago the city of Louisville passed an ordinance fixing a license tax on all wagons and other vehicles that were used in that city. The Adams Express Company refused to pay the tax on its wagons on the ground that the wagons were a part of its business and it already paid a franchise tax and an ad valorem tax.

The company was fined in the Police Court for failure to pay the tax and instituted this suit in equity to prevent the Police Judge from collecting the fine. The lower court decided against the company and it appealed. The court says all other vehicle owners have to pay this license tax and that the wagons of the express company are no more a part of its business than a grocer's wagon is a part of his business. It orders the fine paid and also the license on the wagons heretofore unpaid.

Mrs. J. T. Martin, Eleventh and Main streets, Paris, Ky., says: "Kidney trouble in my case was brought on by a fall I received two or three years ago. My back ached until I thought it would break and sometimes often shot through my kidneys as if someone were hitting me. I tried various remedies, but could not find relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Wilson's Drug Store. After using them one week I felt like a different woman and I was soon completely cured. I gave a statement for publication in 1903, telling of my experience and at this time I am glad to confirm all I then said in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. I think more highly of them than ever."

Church Built in Ten Hours.

A church built in ten hours was the remarkable feat performed at Henderson recently. What was a vacant lot at a ven o'clock in the morning was transformed into an improved site by 5:30 in the afternoon. The structure which will be occupied by the Christian denomination was erected, rafted, seats installed and the edifice dedicated all within ten hours. The work was done by 150 men. The building is said to be the first of the kind ever commenced and completed the same day in the South.

Failed in Health

"My mother died six years ago," writes Miss Ruth Ward, of Jerseyville, Ill., "and left me to care for six children. I had never been strong; and this, with the shock of her death, was too much for me."

"I failed in health. I was tired all the time and did not want to go anywhere, nor care for company. I had the headache all the time and such bearing-down pains. A very dear friend advised me to take Cardui, as it had done her so much good, so I commenced to use it and now I am in good health."

Form Turkey Pool.

A dispatch from Sharpsburg says: "Miss Jennie Shroat is making an active canvass of the 'housekeepers' in Bath county who are turkey raisers, and effecting an organization of women for the avowed purpose of securing more remunerative prices from the dealers for their fowls. Local buyers, is alleged, refuse to deal with the members of the association, but buyers from Fleming county have come into the county and purchased every turkey they could get at 16 cents per pound. Many of the women sold over two hundred dollars worth of turkeys at sixteen cents per pound for the Christmas markets for other towns.

At His Request?
"At our church," said little Kitty to the caller, "the women are just as polite as the men. They take off their hats to the preacher."

Sunflower Philosophy.

No man's troubles are as great as his sighs.

Any meal tastes good to a sixteen-year-old stomach.

An engaged girl is kissed a great deal more than a married woman.

No man ever became an anarchist until after he had been a loafer a long time.

Nothing looks prettier on a woman than a white apron with a big bow at the back.

If a man lives to be thirty, he becomes careful about risking his life on thin ice, and tries to eat himself to death.

The list of satisfied customers doesn't include any man who paid a high price for his headache the night before he got it.

Stimulated Interest.

Harlow—"Jimson seems to have a wonderful amount of adaptability." Barlow—"You bet he has. Why, I once saw him get excited over a game of chess."

Wants to Help Some One.

For thirty years J. F. Boyer of Fertile, Mo., needed help and couldn't find it. That's why he wants to help someone now. Suffering so long himself he feels for all distress from backache, nervousness, loss of appetite, lassitude and kidney disorders. He shows that Electric Bitters work wonders for such troubles. "Five bottles," he writes, "wholly cured me and now I am well and hearty." It's also positively guaranteed for liver trouble, dyspepsia, blood disorders, female complaints and malaria. Try them. 50c at Oberdorfer's.

Moore Exonerated.

Protecting himself from the onslaught of his opponent, who it is said was armed with a knife, Charles Martin of Bourbon, aged 21, killed John Ashley, colored, Winchester Sunday by cutting the latter's throat from ear to ear.

Coroner H. C. Nunnally held the inquest over the body of Ashley, and the jury returned a verdict declaring that they believed that Martin cut the negro in self defense.

TUBULAR BELL CHIME

The Herschede Hall Clock as a timepiece, a tubular chime, and an article of furniture for home, office, or institution, appeals alike to utility, refinement, and musical taste. The perfect movement insures correctness of time; the solid oak or mahogany case, with classic lines, conforms to good taste; and the melodious tubular chimes, sounding the hours and quarters after the peals of Whittington or Westminster, serve as a pleasing reminder of the passing hour. The fifty styles give ample choice in design, size, and price, all showing the moon's phases in the dial arch. We are sales agents for The Herschede Hall Clock Co. of this city, and will send illustrated catalog on request.

Scott's Emulsion

is the original—has been the standard for thirty-five years.

There are thousands of so-called "just as good" Emulsions, but they are not—they are simply imitations which are never as good as the original. They are like thin milk—SCOTT'S is thick like a heavy cream.

If you want it thin, do it yourself—with water—but don't buy it thin.

BASE BALL AND PLAYERS

Mack Allison, "the pride of Owensboro," who the latter part of the season of 1910, did such effective work for the Richmond club, and who was reported last week to have signed a contract with the Savannah club of the South Atlantic League, has been drafted by the San Antonio Club of the Texas League. Allison had signed a contract with the Savannah club and had secured his release from Richmond before the draft season had closed. The draft money was forwarded to Secretary Farrell before the season for drafting closed and was received by President Ussery of the Blue Grass League Saturday. Allison will be seen with the San Antonio club next season and with his allies as a slaban will no doubt make a good showing.

A dispatch from Lexington says there seems to be a probability that Newport will be in the Blue Grass Base Ball League next season, and there is also a possibility that Covington will have a team in this league. In that event the league will make an eight club circuit and the Blue Grass League, which has heretofore been confined to Central Kentucky, would largely increase its importance and prestige. The management of the Newport club is anxious to buy a franchise from one of the present members or otherwise enter the Blue Grass League, but the stumbling block for the present is President Garry Hermann, of the National Commission who has refused the request of Newport to enter the Blue Grass League, at least at the present time.

JO VARDEN,

"Bad Bill" Bailey Shot to Death

In a desperate pistol duel at Wellhite, Breathitt county, Saturday, Willie Bailey, known as "Bad Bill," was shot to death by J. C. Shepherd and the latter wounded by Bailey, reached Jackson Saturday. Bad blood had existed between them for some time, Bailey having carved Shepherd up badly a year ago. They made friends, however.

On the day of the tragedy Bailey went to Shepherd's store intoxicated and, as if to challenge him, shouted as he entered, "I'm the worst man that ever saw this place."

Shepherd regarded this as a challenge and both men drew their pistols and began firing. Bailey was shot through the head and lungs and died instantly. Shepherd was a target for three of Bailey's bullets, only one of which struck him, inflicting a slight wound in his side. He will recover.

After Dinner Go to the Comet.

Comet parties are now all the rage. The attendance has grown to such an extent that the managers yesterday commenced enlarging the room to accommodate the large crowds. The pictures being presented nightly are the best ever presented in Paris, and the managers say they have made arrangements with one of the best film services in the country to furnish them with still better pictures in the future.

For tonight and this afternoon two splendid pictures will be shown. As a special feature the management has engaged the services of Mr. C. H. Metcalfe, one of the best singers in the State to sing the illustrated songs. Also Miss Marcum, Lexington, an experienced moving picture player has been engaged to play the piano. Altogether the Comet promises a show of forty-five minutes duration not equalled by any other house of its kind in the State.

Falling Off in Tobacco Sales.

Sales of tobacco on the Lexington market were not as heavy during the past week as they were during the week preceding, last week's sales amounting to approximately 1,355,665 pounds with prices ranging from 2 to 20 1/2 cents, as compared to 1,968,800 pounds the previous week, with prices ranging from 3 to 18 cents. The grades of tobacco offered were better than last week and the market was correspondingly stronger and slightly higher average. The price of 20 1/2 cents which was paid for a hoghead of Burley Society 1909 pool tobacco is the record price of the season on the Lexington market. During the week just closed 676,105 pounds of pool tobacco was sold at prices ranging from 6 to 20 1/2 cents, while 679,560 pounds of new crop tobacco was sold at prices ranging from 2 to 18 1/2 cents.

The Kentucky State Trap Shoot ended Friday at Ryland. John E. Schreck of West Covington, won the coveted trophy and title of State Champion, in competition with some of the best shots in the State, after shooting off a tie with George Walker of Ft. Thomas. His score, including the shoot-off, was 28 out of 30 to Walker's 25.

Brief Lease on Life.

A brief lease on life was given James White, a negro who was sentenced to die on the gallows at Pineville by Gov. Willson Friday. He will see one more Christmas even if it is not a cheerful one. The Governor granted a respite until January 10. He says new witnesses have been discovered and he wants to hear them regarding the case before acting finally and allowing the negro to be hanged. White claims to be insane. He assaulted a white child in Bell county and was given the death penalty. The Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment, and Gov. Willson fixed the date for the hanging. White's sentence may be commuted to life imprisonment, now that the respite has been granted.
